Abstract

A method of distributing revocation state information includes receiving first update scheduling information from a first party, and sending digital certificate revocation state information to the first party according to a schedule that is based on the first update scheduling information.